

Contents

	page
Preface	ix
1. Introduction	1
2. The Neohumanist Tradition and Secondary Education in the Exact Sciences.....	4
3. Oberlehrer, Pure Mathematicians, and Technologists....	16
4. The Genesis of Reform in Early Imperial Germany.....	27
5. Crescendo at the Beginning of the Wilhelmian Age	38
6. Felix Klein Diverts the Reform Movement	52
7. The Kultusministerium Reforms Mathematics Instruction	68
8. Debates in the Wake of Reform.....	83
9. Klein Plots a New Course for Instruction	94
10. The New Instruction and the New Humanism	109
11. Conclusion.....	125
Index	129