

Enlightenment Orientalism in the American Mind, 1770–1807

Matthew H. Pangborn

Contents

| | |
|---|-----|
| Acknowledgments | ix |
| Introduction: America's "Oriental Mirror" | 1 |
| 1 American Oriental Tales | 40 |
| 2 Mobility, Luxury, Textuality, and Liberty in Father Bombo's Pilgrimage to Mecca (1770) | 77 |
| 3 The "Oriental" Threat to the Body of America in The Algerine Spy in Pennsylvania (1787) | 108 |
| 4 The Oriental Spectacle of Western Power in The Algerine Captive (1797) | 139 |
| 5 History, Nature, and National Progress in Letters of Shahcoolen (1801–02) | 174 |
| 6 Woman, Orientalism, and Empire in Salmagundi (1807–08) | 206 |
| Epilogue: The Haunted House of "Oriental" History in The Alhambra (1832) | 241 |
| Index | 261 |