

The Earth Writes

The Great Earthquake and the Novel in Post-3/11 Japan

Koichi Haga

LEXINGTON BOOKS

Lanham • Boulder • New York • London

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction: Overview of Post-3/11 Cultural Production	ix
Part I: The Immediate Impact of the 3/11 Disaster on the Writers' Consciousness
1 Ecological Time-Space Emerging from the Encounter with the 3/11 Earthquake and Tsunami	3
2 Fissures Opened in Literary Ground: The Great East Japan Earthquake and Kenzaburō Ōe's In Late Style	19
3 Animal Agencies in Post-3/11 Literature	35
Part II: Acceleration of the Writers' Ecological Consciousness
4 Remembrance of Postcolonial Conditions—The Earthquake's Disclosure of Uncommon Ground: Tōhoku Area as the Other Within	57
5 Dystopian Novels Flourish in the Post-3/11 Period	81
6 The Emergence of a Planetary Sense Through Geographic Catastrophe	101
Conclusion	117
Bibliography	121
Index	125
About the Author	129