

Contents

Acknowledgements vi

Introduction 1

PART ONE

I.1 The phenomenological method, a theoretical 'application' 13

I.2 Husserl's ethics and psychology 29

I.3 The Trinitarian relationship of the world 49

I.4 Pathological and mystical time 67

I.5 The ethics of intimacy 81

I.6 Forced intimacy 95

PART TWO

II.1 Phenomenological research and ethical experience 111

II.2 A leadership challenge 123

II.3 A parent's ethical dilemma 141

II.4 The beginning of an affair 161

Conclusion 183

Notes 189

Bibliography 219

Index 247