

Sue C. O'Neill
Editor

Incarcerated Youth Transitioning Back to the Community

International Perspectives

Contents

1	Introduction	1
	Sue C. O'Neill
Part I The Taxonomy of Transition Programming 2.0 as Applied to Juvenile Justice Transition Planning and Processes
2	Transitions in the Lives of Incarcerated Youth	7
	Sue C. O'Neill
3	The Taxonomy for Transition Programming 2.0 as Applied to Youth in the Juvenile Justice System	23
	Paula Kohler, June Gothberg and Jennifer Coyle
4	Involvement of the Young Person in Transition Planning	35
	Heather Griller Clark
5	The Role of Family in Supporting Incarcerated Youth Transitioning from the Juvenile Justice System Back into the Community	59
	Iva Strnadová
6	Supporting the Transition of Incarcerated Youth Back to the Community: A Multi-systemic Wraparound Approach	77
	Therese M. Cumming
Part II International Perspectives on Transition Planning and Supports
7	Transitions from Behind the Fence to the Community: The Australian Experience	97
	Sue C. O'Neill, Therese M. Cumming, Iva Strnadová and Christine Grima-Farrell

8	The Transitioning of Incarcerated Youth in the New Zealand Youth Justice System	115
	Ian Lambie and Julia Ioane
9	Japanese Juveniles in Transition	131
	Tom Ellis, Akira Kyo and Sue C. O'Neill
10	Transitions of Sanctioned Youth in Slovenia	149
	Darja Tadič and Špela Razpotnik
11	Promoting Shifts in Personal Narratives and Providing Structures of Support: Transitions of Incarcerated Children in England and Wales	167
	Tim Bateman and Neal Hazel
12	Transitions of Incarcerated Youth in Finland	187
	Timo Harrikari and Sanna Hautala
13	Community Reintegration for Young Offenders in the United States of America	205
	Deanne K. Unruh, Joe C. Gagnon and Caroline MaGee
14	Rehabilitation and Effective Transitioning of Incarcerated Youths in Canada	221
	Donald Clairmont
15	Juveniles in Transition: The Situation in South Africa	237
	Lukas M. Muntingh and Sean Lerner
Part III Closing Section
16	Transition Supports and Barriers to “Staying Out”	257
	Sue C. O'Neill	