

Gender, Health, and History in Modern East Asia

Edited by
Angela Ki Che Leung and Izumi Nakayama

With an Introduction by Francesca Bray

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
List of Illustrations	viii
Introduction	1
Francesca Bray
Part I. Bodies beyond Boundaries: Evolving Physical Development and Reproductive Technologies	35
1. Gender, Health, and the Problem of “Precocious Puberty” in Meiji Japan	37
Izumi Nakayama
2. Sex in School: Educating the Junior High Students in Early Republican China	61
Jen-der Lee
3. From Single Motherhood to Queer Reproduction: Access Politics of Assisted Conception in Taiwan	92
Chia-ling Wu
4. Solving Low Fertility Rate with Technology?	115
Jung-ok Ha
Part II. Women Producing and Consuming Health Knowledge: Embracing Drugs, Vitamins, and Food	137
5. The Japanese Patent Medicine Trade in East Asia: Women’s Medicines and the Tensions of Empire	139
Susan L. Burns
6. Housewives as Kitchen Pharmacists: Dr. Chuang Shu Chih, Gendered Identity, and Traditional Medicine in East Asia	166
Sean Hsiang-lin Lei

Part III. Potent(ial) Virility: Labor, Migration, and the Military in the Construction of Masculinity	193
7. Weak Men and Barren Women: Framing Beriberi / Jiaoqi / Kakké in Modern East Asia, ca. 1830–1940 Angela Ki Che Leung	195
8. Christine Goes to China: Xie Jianshun and the Discourse of Sex Change in Cold War Taiwan Howard Chiang	216
9. Providing Reassurance and Affirmation: Masculinity, Militarization, and Refashioning a Male Role in South Korean Family Planning, 1962 to the late 1980s John P. DiMoia	244
Bibliography	271
List of Contributors	303
Index	306