

THE PHILOSOPHY OF SPIKE LEE

Edited by Mark T. Conard

THE UNIVERSITY PRESS OF KENTUCKY

Contents

Preface vii

I. Justice, Value, and the Nature of Evil

The Symbolism of Blood in Clockers 3
Douglas McFarland

The Prostitution Trap of Elite Sport in He Got Game 15
Jason Holt and Robert Pitter

Aristotle and MacIntyre on Justice in 25th Hour 26
Mark T. Conard

We Can't Get Off the Bus: A Commentary on Spike Lee and Moral Motivation 40
Gabriella Beckles-Raymond

Monsters and Moralism in Summer of Sam 54
R. Barton Palmer

II. Race, Sexuality, and Community

(Still) Fighting the Power: Public Space and the Unspeakable
Privacy of the Other in Do the Right Thing 75
Elizabeth Hope Finnegan

- Coworking in the Kingdom of Culture: Identity and Community in the Films of Spike Lee 95
Charles F. Peterson
- Feminists and “Freaks”: She’s Gotta Have It and Girl 6 106
Karen D. Hoffman
- The Dialectic of King and X in Do the Right Thing 123
Michael Silberstein
- Fevered Desires and Interracial Intimacies in Jungle Fever 144
Ronald R. Sundstrom
- Bamboozled*: Philosophy through Blackface 164
Dan Flory
- III. Time, the Subject, and Transcendence
- Transcendence and Sublimity in Spike Lee’s Signature Shot 187
Jerold J. Abrams
- Economies of Time in Clockers 200
Richard Gilmore
- Rethinking the First Person: Autobiography, Authorship, and the Contested Self in Malcolm X 215
David LaRocca
- List of Contributors 243
- Index 247