

The Disappearing Christ

Secularism in the

Silent Era ✧

Phillip Maciak

Columbia University Press

New York

Contents

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction // The Disappearing Christ and Other Stories	1
Overture: Anno Domini 1959	1
The Historical Jesus in Broad Daylight	7
Unseen Somethings: American Studies and Postsecular Critique	11
Things Normally Unseen: Film Studies and Postsecular Critique	17
Outline of the Book	24
1. A Rare and Wonderful Sight: Ben-Hur's Historicism	28
Holy Land Disappointment: Prescott, Stephens, Melville	32
Never Long Invisible: Ben-Hur's Eyewitness Narrative	42
Garfield Minus Jesus: Ben-Hur in Pictures	52
2. Looking Sideways: Media Theories of Jesus Christ	55
Media Theories of Secularism	60
A New Medium: Elizabeth Stuart Phelps	66
The Christ Selfie: F. Holland Day	83

3. Tricks and Actualities: The Passion Play Film and the Cinema of Attractions	98
St. John in Shirtsleeves: The Passion Play Before Film	100
Spectacular Realism: Between Tricks and Actualities	104
The Rickety Platform and the Elegant Dissolve: Tricks and the Passion Play	108
The Passion of Gene Gauntier: Actualities and the Passion Play	122
The Passion Play Film in Transition	130
4. The Double Life of Superimposition: W.E.B. Du Bois's Black Christ Cycle	134
Double Consciousness and the Cinema of Attractions	138
Fables of the Reconstruction: The Dunning School	145
D. W. Griffith's Alternative Facts	149
On Superimposition	157
Spectators at a Crucifixion: The Black Christ Cycle	159
Coda // Resurrectionists: Toward a Post-Cinematic Postsecular	176
The Resurrection is in Technicolor: Cecil B. DeMille	178
The Resurrection is CGI: Mel Gibson	184
Post-Cinematic/Postsecular	189
The Resurrection is Straight to Video: Abbas Kiarostami	196

.....

Notes 205

Bibliography 225

Index 235