

CONTENTS

Series Editor's Preface	x
Acknowledgements	xi
 Introduction: The Historical Novel Now	 1
Novelist as Theorist	5
 1 Early Manifestations and Some Definitions	 8
Jane Porter and Maria Edgeworth	15
Sir Walter Scott: The Waverley Novels	20
Theoretical Paradigms: Franco Moretti and Distant Reading	23
 2 Developments and Expansion	 27
Novelist as Theorist: Alessandro Manzoni	27
Mary Shelley: Romance and Temporal Experiment	30
History, Theory, Popularity	32
Charlotte Brontë's Experimentation	36
Novelist as Theorist: George Eliot and Realism	40
The Historical Novel in America	44
African American Historical Novels	48
Huckleberry Finn, Race, and History	52
Novelist as Theorist: Leo Tolstoy	55
 3 Into the Twentieth Century	 59
Theories of the Historical Novel During the Twentieth Century	61
Theoretical Paradigms: Georg Lukács	65

Modernism and the End-of-history Novel	69
Novelist as Theorist: Sylvia Townsend Warner	74
4 Through the Century: Romance and Postmodernism	81
Historical Romance	82
Theoretical Paradigms: Diana Wallace	88
Postmodernism and Metafiction	91
Theoretical Paradigms: Linda Hutcheon	95
Umberto ECO, the Name of the Rose and Detective Fiction	97
‘Tap-Dancing on the Edge of the Abyss’: Problematizing Postmodernism Through History	100
5 History from the Mid-1990s and the Post-2000 Boom	102
Novelist as Theorist: Hilary Mantel	108
New Apparatuses and Support Mechanisms for Historical Fictions	112
New and Expanded Genres	119
Crime Fiction	120
Fantasy and Alternative Histories	122
Writing the Immediate Past and the Art of Simultaneity	125
Rewriting: Revision and Parody	127
The Neo-victorian, and the Neo-historical	132
Novelist as Theorist: W. G. Sebald	134
6 Undoing History	137
Reclaiming Black and Indigenous Histories in America	143
Novelist as Theorist: Toni Morrison	144
Reclaiming Narratives and Rewriting the Past	146
Challenging Colonial Temporality	150
Senegalese Historical Fiction	152

Novelist as Theorist: Chinua Achebe and Anti-colonial Writing	155
Rewriting The Past	159
Theoretical Paradigms: Trauma Theory	161
New Genealogies and Roots	166
Magical Realism and History	168
Sexual and Gender Diversity in/and Historical Novels	174
Novelist as Theorist: Sarah Waters	178
Theoretical Paradigm: Trans	182
Climate Emergency and Climate Fiction	185
Novelist as Theorist: Amitav Ghosh	189
Ways of Approaching an Historical Novel	192
Glossary	195
Bibliography	199
Index	209