

CONTENTS

Preface

ix

I. THE USE OF THE PAST

1

Memory as Part of Self-Understanding . . . The Vision of America's Past . . . The Magic of Legends . . . What Is "Real"? . . . Christian and Jewish Views . . . The Diversity of Christian Memories . . . The Assumption of an Unchanging Christianity . . . An Authoritative Past

II. THE OLDER THE BETTER

27

The Need for Perspective . . . Luke and the Canons of History . . . First Outline of a Christian Construction of the Past . . . The Two Most Creative Centuries . . . Hegesippus' Recollections . . . The Church as a Virgin . . . Tertullian Against Heresy . . . The Time of the Gods . . . Truth Older than Error

III. THE BISHOP'S MAIDEN:

HISTORY WITHOUT HISTORY

52

Eusebius . . . The Ecclesiastical History . . . Divine Origins . . . The Heretics . . . Compelling Legends . . . The Standards of Truth . . . History Without Change

IV. NO FAITH EXCEPT THE OLD	77
The Robber Council . . . The Council of Chalcedon . . .
The Patristic Attitude . . . The Doctrine of the Trinity . . .
The Holy Spirit . . . The Growing Importance of Creeds
. . . Peter Abelard
V. THE HATEFUL CHARGE OF NOVELTY	104
The Histories of the Reformation Era . . . The Centuries . . .
The Annales Ecclesiastici . . . One Certain Trumpet
VI. APOSTLES AT YOUR SERVICE	119
The Left-Wing Reformers . . . Pietism . . . A New Critical
Principle . . . The "Father of Dogmengeschichte" . . .
The Infallible Bible . . . The Infallible Pope . . . John Henry
Newman . . . Adolf von Harnack . . . The Theory of "Early
Catholicism" . . . Are the Critics Critical Enough?
VII. YOU CAN'T GO HOME AGAIN	158
Christianity an Innovation . . . What Was the Original Faith?
. . . The Earliest Testimonies . . . The "Son of Man" . . .
The Value of the New Testament Witness . . . Lessons from
the Old Testament . . . Two Cases in the History of Chris-
tianity . . . The Nicene Controversy . . . Diversity and
Common Identity
VIII. WHAT HAS BEEN IS NOT WHAT WILL BE	186
Transcending the Present . . . The Great Fallacy . . . The
Christian Vision . . . Our Post-Constantinian Age . . .
Christian Anti-Semitism . . . The Past Is Never the Whole
Story
Epilogue	203
Notes	207