

CONTENTS

List of Images vii

Acknowledgements ix

PART ONE WHAT IS CRITICISM? 1

- 1 Introduction 3
- 2 Aristotle and the origins of criticism 9
- 3 Talking in private: the academies and the salons 21
- 4 Understanding taste: the critic as qualified observer 43
- 5 Charles Baudelaire: the beginning of fashion criticism; the art critic of the salons 65
- 6 Oscar Wilde and the apostles of aestheticism 81

PART TWO REPORTING FASHION 95

Overview 97

Snapshots 101

Fashion and morality: Leo Tolstoy: what is art? 101

Paul Poiret: 'Sultan of fashion' – from tradition to innovation 103

Diana Vreeland: 'Why don't you?' – the invention of the fashion editor 105

Christian Dior: the 'New Look' and reporting by Carmel Snow 107

Yves Saint Laurent – a 1970s analysis of 'The couturier and his brand' 109

What is fashion irony? Mild sarcasm or feigning ignorance? 111

Reporting on the Japanese Revolution in Paris 113

Richard Martin as essayist: Karl Lagerfeld reworks Chanel 116

Being critical about 'deconstruction': theoretical approach or 'le destroy'? 118

What is a reviewer? 121

What gives Suzy Menkes the status of professional critic? 125

Acne Paper: the beauty of print, the splendour of the page 128

How to be a 'critical' blogger: moving beyond the PR release 131

Conclusion – where to from here? 137

Notes 139

Bibliography 141

Index 147