

Contents

List of contributors	page vii
Acknowledgements	xii
Introduction: The written self – John Baker and Marion Leclair	1
PART I Early modern selves and the Reason v. Passion debate
1 Anne Killigrew: a spiritual wit – Laura Alexander	27
2 Charitable though passionate creature: the portrait of Man in late seventeenth-century sermons – Regina Maria Dal Santo	44
3 Self-love in Mandeville and Hutcheson – Jeffrey Hopes	60
4 Fashioning fictional selves from French sources: Eliza Haywood’s Love in Excess – Orla Smyth	73
5 The death of Cordelia and the economics of preference in eighteenth-century moral psychology – William Flesch	95
PART II Self-exploration in the Age of Reason: division and continuity
6 ‘Chaos dark and deep’: grotesque selves and self-fashioning in Pope’s Dunciad – Clark Lawlor	117

CONTENTS

7	In two minds: Johnson, Boswell and representations of the self – Allan Ingram	135
8	‘The place where my present hopes began to dawn’: space, limitation and the perception of female selfhood in Samuel Richardson’s Pamela – Barbara Puschmann-Nalenz	151
9	The discursive construction of the self in Shaftesbury and Sterne: Tristram Shandy and the quest for identity – Gioiella Bruni Roccia	170
 PART III Romantic wanderings: the self in search of (its) place
10	The anxiety of the self and the exile of the soul in Blake and Wordsworth – Laura Quinney	191
11	Transgressing the boundaries of reason: Burke’s poetic (Miltonic) reading of the sublime – Eva Antal	210
12	Self and community in radical defence in the French revolutionary era: the example of Oppression!!! The Appeal of Captain Perry to the People of England (1795) – Rachel Rogers	228
	Bibliography	248
	Index	263