

Semantic Research

From Data to Analysis

Juergen Bohnemeyer University at Buffalo, State University of New York

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Preface	page xi
A Short Summary of a Longish History	xi
Organization of the Book	xv
Target Readership and Learning Goals	xv
Statement of Permissions	xx
List of Abbreviations in Interlinear Glosses	xxii
 Part I Basics of Semantic Theory
1 Meaning and Its Study	3
1.1 What Is Empirical Semantics?	3
1.2 Meaning and Interaction	20
1.3 Reference and Representation	40
1.4 Elements and Goals of a Scientific Theory of Meaning	58
 2 Meaning and the Properties of Language	 72
2.1 Meaning, Modality, and the Semiotics of Language	72
2.2 Semantic and Pragmatic Meaning	94
2.3 Lexical and Compositional Meaning	114
 3 Semantic Theories, Metalanguages, and Ontologies	 130
3.1 Propositional Calculus	130
3.2 Predicate Calculus	141
3.3 Event Semantics	155
3.4 Metalanguages and Semantic Primitives	168
 Part II The Practice of Semantic Research
4 Semantic Phenomena	183
4.1 Referential Evidence	184
4.2 Syntagmatic Evidence	208
4.3 Pragmatic Evidence	220
4.4 Evidence from Categorization	240
4.5 Psycholinguistic Evidence	260

5	Gathering Semantic Data	274
5.1	Working with Conversational and Corpus Data	274
5.2	Elicitation: From Meaning to Utterance	295
5.3	Elicitation: From Utterance to Meaning	312
6	Semantic Analysis	325
6.1	The Process of Semantic Analysis: Positive and Negative Evidence	325
6.2	The Impact of Different Types of Meaning Components on the Usage Extension	343
6.3	Identifying and Classifying Implicatures	359
6.4	Identifying Presuppositions	371
6.5	Diagnosing Paradigmatic Relations in the Lexicon	381
6.6	Inter-speaker Variation and Intra-speaker Variation	396
	Part III Domains of Semantic Research
7	Semantic Typology	419
7.1	Introduction: Semantic Typology	419
7.2	History of the Field: Notable Studies	421
7.3	Methods of Data Collection	425
7.4	The Quantitative Turn	429
7.5	Summary	446
8	Reference to Individuals	448
8.1	Endurants and Perdurants	448
8.2	The Nominal Domain	451
8.3	The Extension of the Nominal Domain	452
8.4	Semantic and Pragmatic Functions of Nouns	453
8.5	Animacy Hierarchies	459
8.6	Crosslinguistic Variation in the Nominal Lexicon	464
8.7	A Field Guide to the Nominal Lexicon	467
8.8	Summary	476
9	Space	479
9.1	Introduction: Spatial Properties	479
9.2	Locative and Motion Descriptions	484
9.3	Spatial Frames of Reference	489
9.4	Reference Frames and Orientation	491
9.5	Disposition	494
9.6	The Typology of Locative Predications	495

9.7 A Field Guide to the Grammar and Lexicon of Space	499
9.8 Summary	505
10 Temporal Semantics	509
10.1 Introduction	509
10.2 A Framework for Temporal Semantics	511
10.3 Crosslinguistic Variation	519
10.4 Tenselessness	525
10.5 Tenselessness and the Future	532
10.6 A Field Guide to Temporal Semantics	539
10.7 Summary	545
References	549
Index	589

An extensive terminological glossary is available online at www.cambridge.org/semanticresearch.