

Contents

List of Illustrations	vii
Note on the Cover Illustration	viii
Notes on Contributors	ix
1 The Nationalization of Scientific Knowledge in Nineteenth-Century Central Europe: An Introduction Mitchell G. Ash and Jan Surman	1
2 Science and Its Publics: Internationality and National Languages in Central Europe Jan Surman	30
3 'Staatsnation', 'Kulturnation', 'Nationalstaat': The Role of National Politics in the Advancement of Science and Scholarship in Austria from 1848 to 1938 Johannes Feichtinger	57
4 National 'Consensus' As Culture and Practice: The Geological Survey in Vienna and the Habsburg Empire (1849–1867) Marianne Klemun	83
5 Scientific Nationalism: A Historical Approach to Nature in Late Nineteenth-Century Hungary Gábor Palló	102
6 Acts of Creation: The Eötvös Family and the Rise of Science Education in Hungary Tibor Frank	113
7 Patriotism, Nationalism and Internationalism in Czech Science: Chemists in the Czech National Revival Soňa Štrbářová	138
8 Fault Lines and Borderlands: Earthquake Science in Imperial Austria Deborah R. Coen	157

9	Nationalizing Eugenics: The Hungarian Public Debate of 1910–1911 Marius Turda	183
10	The Politics of Fin-de-siècle Anatomy Tatjana Buklijas	209
	Index	245