

CONTENTS

List of tables	page viii
Preface	ix
1 The enquiry: scope, method, texts
The enquiry	1
Criteria: skills in English	4
Texts	6
Textual conventions	10
2 Reading, spelling, pronunciation: the elements
Introduction	14
Pupils and teachers at work	16
Reading- and spelling-skills	22
The letters of the alphabet	25
Name, sound and power	32
Name and sound	32
Sound and power	36
Naming consonants	41
The CV pattern	41
The VC pattern	43
The mixed pattern	45
Names of particular letters	48
The sounds of the letters	52
Teaching the alphabet	58
Syllables	72
Proper beginnings and endings	75
The division of syllables	77
3 Reading, spelling, pronunciation: the skills
Kinds of spelling	90
Spelling-lists	96
Learning the monosyllables	99
After the monosyllables	103

Rules for spelling	108
Two eighteenth-century schemes of work	109
Spelling and reading	111
Spelling before reading	113
Reading before spelling	115
Reading with spelling	116
Reading without spelling: context and wholeness	117
The rejection of context	125
Dictation	127
From the letter to the word: a summary	130
4 Interpretation: literature presented
The teaching of literature: before 1700	135
Indirect literary influences	135
Direct literary influences	148
The teaching of literature: eighteenth century, to 1770	159
Three writers of verse for children	167
Anthologies	169
5 Interpretation: literature taught
The teaching of literature: eighteenth century, from 1770	183
Anthologies	185
Analysis of the anthologies, 1771–1801	195
Teachers' comments on English reading, 1698–1801	200
The teaching of literature: nineteenth century	212
Literary history	218
Anthologies	219
Analysis of the anthologies, 1802–1870	223
Readers	238
Imagination, understanding, memory	247
Authors, set books and examinations	261
J.W. Hales and E.A. Abbott	265
6 Expression and performance
The skills	268
Individual writers: sixteenth and seventeenth centuries	270
Some eighteenth- and nineteenth-century teaching- methods	278
Elocution	286

Talking, debating, making speeches and reading aloud	290
Dramatic work	297
Written expression	303
7 Linguistic control
Until the end of the eighteenth century	317
English grammar and Latin grammar	317
What the pupils were expected to learn	320
Attempts at reform	342
The nineteenth century	346
Ordinary grammars and established methods	346
Exercises	350
Vocabulary, etymology and history of the language	354
Innovation and development	359
8 English: the development of a subject
The term 'English'	372
An alliance of components	378
Change and progress	383
	386
Abbreviations
Bibliography 1	387
British texts recorded and consulted
Bibliography 2	605
British ABCs and alphabet books consulted
Bibliography 3	607
American texts consulted
Bibliography 4	621
Modern works consulted
Index	631