

CONTENTS

Preface	xi
Transcription and Citation	xix
Notes and References	xxi
Abbreviations	xxiii
1. ENGLISH AND ITS BACKGROUND
1.1 A Problem of Demarcation	1
1.2 'Standard' vs. 'Dialect' and Related Problems	5
1.3 Origins, 1: Indo-European and Germanic	9
1.4 Origins, 2: The Ancestry of English	17
1.5 Structure and History	20
1.6 How Do We Know Anything About Early English?	26
Notes and References	32
2. THE EXTERNAL HISTORY OF ENGLISH: A SKETCH
2.1 External vs. Internal History	34
2.2 The Völkerwanderungen	35
2.3 The Germanic Settlement of Britain	39
2.4 The Old English Kingdoms and Dialects	43
2.5 Christianity and Latin	46
2.6 The Scandinavian Invasions	50
2.7 The Norman Conquest	54
2.8 Dialect and Standard in Middle English	61
2.9 Development of the Southern Standard	65
2.10 Grammarians and English: 'Authority' and 'Correctness'	69
2.11 Later European Contacts	73
2.12 The Spread of English	77
Notes and References	83
3. PHONOLOGY
3.1 Preliminaries	86
3.2 The Segmental Phonology of a Standard Dialect
3.2.1 Introduction	90
3.2.2 Consonants	91
3.2.3 Vowels	96
3.2.4 Major Allophonic Processes	99

3.3	Syllable Structure	101
3.4	Rhythmic Organization: Stress	108
3.5	Excursus: Stress and Syllable Division	115
3.6	Latin and Germanic Stress	117
3.7	Allegro Speech	118
3.8	Origins, 1: The Old English Period	121
3.9	Origins, 2: The Middle English Period	126
3.10	Origins, 3: Early Modern to Modern English	129
	Notes and References	134
4.	MORPHOSYNTAX
4.1	Morphology, Syntax, Morphosyntax, Meaning	137
4.2	English as a Grammatical Type	139
4.3	The Noun Phrase
4.3.1	Introductory	146
4.3.2	Nouns and Determiners	146
4.3.3	Personal Pronouns	151
4.3.4	Adjectives and the Order of NP Elements	154
4.4	Deixis	156
4.5	Main Verbs and Auxiliaries
4.5.1	Forms and Functions	158
4.5.2	Tense and aspect	159
4.5.3	Modality	165
4.5.4	The Syntax of the Auxiliary: Tense, Aspect, Questions, Negation	170
4.5.5	The Verb and Auxiliary: Historical Background	173
4.6	Subordination
4.6.1	Subordination in General	178
4.6.2	Complementation	179
4.6.3	Relative Clauses	184
4.6.4	The Evolution of Relativization Strategies	189
4.7	Grammar and Meaning
4.7.1	Semantic vs. Syntactic Roles	191
4.7.2	More on Focussing	195
4.8	Word-Formation
4.8.1	Lexical Expansion	197
4.8.2	Compounding	199
4.8.3	Productivity	203
4.8.4	Derivational Morphology: Phonological Implications	204
4.8.5	Derivation by Affix: Basic Types	209
4.8.6	Some Other WF Processes	210
	Notes and References	212

5. DIALECTS OF ENGLISH
5.1 Criteria	215
5.2 Regional Dialects and Boundaries: An Example	217
5.3 Traditional Dialect: Some Remarks	223
5.4 The Traditional Dialect Regions of England	226
5.5 Regionality and Social Variation	235
5.6. Modern Dialects in England
5.6.1 Regional Vernacular, Regional Standard, and RP	243
5.6.2 Some Modern English Regional Types	246
5.7 The Celtic Countries
5.7.1 Scotland	251
5.7.2 Ireland, South and North	262
5.7.3 Wales	271
5.8 Extraterritorial English
5.8.1 Basic Divisions: 'American' vs. 'British'	274
5.8.2 North America: Canada and the U.S.A.	280
5.8.3 Australia and New Zealand	295
5.8.4 South Africa	301
Notes and References	309
6. ENGLISH AND GERMANIC REVISITED
6.1 Prologue: Innovativeness, Conservatism and Convergence	315
6.2 'Deviation from Type'	317
6.3 A Common Germanic Pattern: Erosion of Caste Systems	319
6.4 English, Yiddish, Afrikaans: A West Germanic Convergence Cluster	322
7. EPILOGUE: THE CONTENT OF A LANGUAGE HISTORY, OR WHAT DOES IT ALL MEAN ANYHOW?	333
Notes and References	337
Appendix I: Phonetic Classification and Transcription	338
Appendix II: Other Symbols	342
Glossary	343
References	365
Index	377