

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction: The Historical Renaissance HEATHER DUBROW AND RICHARD STRIER	I
Part 1: The Mid-Tudor Scene
A Tudor Queen Finds Voice: Katherine Parr's Lamentation of a Sinner JANEL MUELLER	15
Ideas of Resistance before Elizabeth DONALD R. KELLEY	48
Part 2: Shakespeare, Politics, and History
Descanting on Deformity: Richard III and the Shape of History MARJORIE GARBER	79
Faithful Servants: Shakespeare's Praise of Disobedience RICHARD STRIER	104
Cymbeline and the Unease of Topicality LEAH S. MARCUS	134
Part 3: Poets, Courtiers, and the Monarchy
Sidney and His Queen MAUREEN QUILLIGAN	171

CONTENTS

“The Sun in Water”: Donne’s Somerset Epithalamium and the Poetics of Patronage HEATHER DUBROW	197
Law and Ideology: The Civil Law and Theories of Absolutism in Elizabethan and Jacobean England BRIAN P. LEVACK	220
“Subject to Ev’ry Mounters Bended Knee”: Herbert and Authority MICHAEL C. SCHOENFELDT	242
Part 4: Humanism and Its Discontents
Barbarous Tongues: The Ideology of Poetic Form in Renaissance England RICHARD HELGERSON	273
Sir Philip Sidney and the Uses of History ARTHUR F. KINNEY	293
Spenser, Bacon, and the Myth of Power CLARK HULSE	315
From Matron to Monster: Tudor-Stuart London and the Languages of Urban Description LAWRENCE MANLEY	347
Notes on Contributors	375