

Table of Contents

1. Introduction: Cognition, Content, and Knowledge Revisited	1
1.0 Taking Intentionality Very Seriously	2
1.1 Intentionality and Essential Embodiment	5
1.2 Categorical Epistemology	13
1.3 The Proto-Rationality of the Body	24
1.4 Concluding the Introduction: Two Challengeable Assumptions in Contemporary Theories of Cognition, Content, and Knowledge	34
2. The Grip of the Given: A Kantian Theory of Non-Conceptual Content	37
2.0 Introduction	38
2.1 The Varieties of Non-Conceptualism, and Kant	41
2.2 A Dialectical Critique of the Contemporary Debate about Non-Conceptual Content	50
2.3 The Nature of Concepts	60
2.4 A Working Analysis of the Essentially Non-Conceptual Content of Perception, and The Handwaving Argument	69
2.5 Incongruent Counterparts Revisited: The Two Hands Argument	72
2.6 More Reasons for Accepting The Logical Cognitivist Theory of Concepts and Kantian Non-Conceptualism	84
2.7 Some Implications of The Two Hands Argument + Autonomy, and The Generalized Causal Pairing Problem	88
2.8 Another Implication of The Two Hands Argument + Autonomy: The Deep Consciousness Thesis	97
2.9 The Grip of the Given	105
2.10 Conclusion	112
3. Radically Naïve Realism	113
3.0 Introduction	114
3.1 Digestivism, Manifest Realism, and Disjunctivism	115
3.2 The Veridicality Relation, and an Argument for Disjunctivism	124
3.3 Molyneux's Problem Revisited	134
3.4 The Problem of Perceptual Self-Knowledge, and a Minimalist Solution	138
3.5 Conclusion	144
4. Truth in Virtue of Intentionality, Or, The Return of the Analytic-Synthetic Distinction	146
4.0 Introduction	147
4.1 Two Urban Legends of Post-Empiricism	148
4.2 A Very Brief History of the Analytic-Synthetic Distinction	153
4.3 Why the Analytic-Synthetic Distinction Really Matters	158
4.4 Quine's Critique of the Analytic-Synthetic Distinction, and a Critique of Quine's Critique	160
4.5 Three Dogmas of Post-Quineanism	177

4.6	Back to Kant! All Over Again	198
4.7	The Content-and-Rationality Theory of the Analytic-Synthetic Distinction and Modal Dualism	199
4.8	Concluding Un-Quinean and also Un-Kripkean Postscript	228
5.	The Morality of Logic	229
5.0	Introduction	229
5.1	Kant on the Nature of Logic	235
5.2	Pure General Logic Captures the A Priori Essence of Logic	238
5.3	Pure General Logic Is a Categorically Normative Science	248
5.4	A Contemporary Kantian Moralistic Solution to The Problem of Explanatory and Justificatory Status	254
5.5	A Contemporary Kantian Moralistic Solution to The Problem of Epistemic Status and Quine's Predicament Too	256
5.6	Conclusion	263
6.	Rationalism Regained 1: The Benacerraf Dilemmas	264
6.0	Introduction	265
6.1	Rationalism Lost: The Original Benacerraf Dilemma	276
6.2	The Benacerraf Dilemma Extended	297
6.3	The Benacerraf Dilemma Generalized	298
6.4	Conclusion	309
7.	Rationalism Regained 2: A Priori Knowledge and the Nature of Intuitions	310
7.0	Introduction	310
7.1	The Nature of Apriority	313
7.2	He Do the A Priori–A Posteriori Distinction in Eleven Different Voices	318
7.3	In Defense of Weak Transcendental Idealism	335
7.4	What Are Intuitions?	342
7.5	Rational Intuitions and the Irrelevance of Experimental Philosophy	352
7.6	Philosophical Intuitions, Scientific Naturalism, and The Mathematico-Centric Predicament	363
7.7	Conclusion	370
8.	Rationalism Regained 3: Kantian Structuralism and Kantian Intuitionism	371
8.0	Introduction	371
8.1	Kantian Structuralism	374
8.2	Kantian Intuitionism	393
8.3	Parsons, Kantian Structuralism, and Kantian Intuitionism	408
8.4	Why Logic Must Be Transcendental	419
8.5	How to Solve The Generalized Benacerraf Dilemma	437
8.6	Conclusion	438
	Bibliography	443
	Index	465