

CONTENTS

PREFACE	p. ix
BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE AND ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	xiii
CHRONOLOGICAL NOTE	xiv
ABBREVIATIONS	xv
I 'TO DEFINE THE THACKERAYAN ONENESS'	p. I
The method proposed, p. 1. Encouragement from bibliography, p. 3.
II THE ONENESS OF THE MATERIALS	p. 5
The consanguinity of the personages, p. 5. The stretch of scene and time, p. 8.
III THE ONENESS OF FORM AND MANNER	p. 11
The lack of a formal plot, p. 11. Continuity, p. 20. Continuity: certain methods, p. 25. Continuity: the method of imagery, p. 35. Continuity: the method of epic imagery, p. 41. Intercommunica- tions, p. 49. Continuity: prose style, p. 50.
IV THE CONTENT OF THE AUTHORIAL 'I'	p. 55
The limits of self-expression for a novelist, p. 55. Thackeray and the content of the 'I', p. 56. The limits of autobiography, p. 66.
V THE AUTHOR'S CONDUCT OF HIS COMMENTARY	p. 71
The novelist as dramatist or historian, p. 71. 'Panorama' and 'scene', p. 82. The status of the thing seen, p. 85. An addition made to the scene, p. 88. The commentary in the action, p. 90. The action in the commentary, p. 97. Time standing still, p. 108. Variety, p. 110. The links with the shorter writings, p. 111. Story and musing, p. 112.

CONTENTS

VI THE AUTHOR'S TRUTHFULNESS OF

PERSONAGE AND ACTION p. 115

'This person writing strives to tell the truth,' p. 115. Truthfulness of personage, p. 116. Complete truthfulness of personage, p. 123. Milly Costigan, p. 137. Beatrix Esmond, p. 144. Character various within itself, p. 148. The puzzle of character in time, p. 151. The ruling passion, p. 155. Surprise of character and actions, p. 157. Few 'tricks of art', p. 164. Fragments of formal plot, p. 172.

VII THE AUTHOR'S PHILOSOPHY p. 175

Lack of logic, p. 175. No lack of thought, p. 179. Truth about the whole range of society, p. 182. On conditions of authors, p. 196. New truth about emotions and moral character, p. 198. The 'form' of truth new and old, p. 204. 'We may never forget truth', p. 206. Commentary, early, middle and late, p. 209. Sermonizing, p. 216. A constant attitude to truth, p. 220. Truth and 'the ordinary man', p. 228. 'The world of all of us', p. 229. The authorial person and the ordinary man, p. 235. Indecisive moralist, p. 240. The author's estimate of himself, p. 248. The author and human frailty, p. 251. The core of truth, p. 255. A summary, p. 266. 'The chords of all his memory', p. 267.

APPENDIX I. THACKERAY'S PERSONAGES AND

HIS FRIENDS p. 273

Biographical infiltration, p. 273. Historical criticism, p. 277. Weighing the evidence, p. 283.

APPENDIX II. THACKERAY AND TWO LATER

NOVELISTS p. 288

'Shakespeare is a great poet', p. 288. Thackeray and George Eliot, p. 289. Thackeray and Henry James, p. 296.

INDEXES p. 307

PLATES

Thackeray as drawn by Richard Doyle facing p. 62
Thackeray's 'portrait' of himself facing p. 63
Thackeray's design on the wrapper of the parts of Vanity Fair facing p. 63